

A. R. Rahman nominated for World Soundtrack Awards for his music in 'Viceroy's House'

Mumbai: Oscar-winning composer A.R.Rahman is enchanted that his music from the film "Emissary's House" has been shortlisted for the World Soundtrack Awards, an open decision grant.

All soundtrack and film music fans worldwide can make their own choice for what they consider the best soundtrack of the previous 12 months. The soundtrack that gets the most astounding number of votes will get the World Soundtrack Public Choice Award 2017.

Directed by Gurinder Chadha, a British producer of Sikh starting point, Viceroy's House additionally stars Huma Qureshi, Downton Abbey star Hugh Bonneville, Gillian Anderson and late on-screen legend Om Puri.

The film will release as Partition: 1947 in India on August 18.

Viceroy House depends on the last days of British administer over India. In particular, it is set in the Viceroy House (now called Rashtrapati Bhavan) and relates what happened inside the house as Lord Mountbatten played by Hugh Bonneville, the last Viceroy of India, supervises the exchange of power & administration from the British to Indians.

Anderson assumes the role of Lady Mountbatten. Michael Gambon, known for playing Professor Dumbledore in each Harry Potter movies with the exception of the initial two, assumes the role of General Hastings Lionel Ismay.