

Ahead of cabinet reshuffle, Tamil Nadu ruling AIADMK may join NDA in August's next week

Hyderabad: Union cabinet reshuffle is taking place in few days and Tamil Nadu giant AIADMK hinted to join NDA camp after PM Modi and Amit Shah visits south.

BJP Prez Amit Shah and PM Modi met AIADMK top officials and there was a fruitful talk to contribute to nation's development by joining India's largest alliance NDA in coming weeks. Narendra Modi visited Rameswaram for Abdul Kalam's 2nd death anniversary's various events and hence got a chance to meet the Jayalalitha-led top south politician.

Focusing on Lok Sabha 2019 elections, BJP's most important target must be south India where it's symbol is not that dark as of West, North, North East region. Making NDA stronger and play a trump card in south India politics, BJP is eager to have AIADMK in NDA as soon as it is possible. Also, JDU who joined the party just a few days ago, its some of the MPs are yet to accommodate for Union Cabinet.

Sources said reshuffling the Cabinet now, without the photo being sure about the AIADMK front, would not fill the need. The reasoning in the most elevated amounts of the party was that the three key issues of appointment of Governors, Cabinet reshuffle and reconstitution of BJP office-bearers were between connected.

Sources showed that a noteworthy declaration over the AIADMK joining the NDA could be normal in the principal seven-day stretch of August.
